Fast response, sprinklers credited with controlling church fire

Web Staff, cp24.com

A small fire that broke out just before 7 p.m. nearly threatened a downtown Toronto landmark Friday.

Crews were called to the Cathedral Church of St. James at King and Church Streets to find heavy smoke billowing from the historic structure, built in 1844.

Firefighters credit their fast response and a functioning sprinkler system with dousing the small fire, which started near the church's altar.

St. James is Canada's second-tallest church.
